For Immediate Release:

DALTON, GA (February 5th 2013) American Plumbing Professionals, a division of Miller Franchising, has announced the expansion of its franchise offerings to include the entire southeast and south central portions of the United States.

Long a provider of quality plumbing services throughout the region for both commercial and residential customers, American Plumbing Professionals are expanding their footprint by offering local, independent plumbing companies exclusive territory franchising options and customized support.

Bob Stanton, industry veteran and the company's Director of Franchising will head up this effort.

"Our desire is to find qualified small business owners and help them achieve their personal and business goals by providing unparalleled business systems and support." Bob Stanton

The company has expanded its headquarters to include a state of the art training center, call center, and media studio located between Dalton, GA and Chattanooga, TN. In addition the company is developing phone apps and website concepts to bring the plumbing industry into the digital age of E-Commerce.

"We are excited about the growth potential of our plumbing franchise concept. As we grow, we can foresee substantial job offerings to fill our new support center." Joseph Miller

Choosing to stay in the North GA region was a choice grounded in the company's commitment to family and community.

"While many companies experiencing rapid growth choose to relocate to larger cities, we prefer to grow our roots deep and build on a foundation of quality employees and community" Andrew Miller
